TAKE CHARGE OF MURDERER'S TOTS

Fiorelli Signs Papers to Have Youngsters Sent to Institution. Fearing that his children would be left without proper care while he was awaiting trial for the murder of his wife, Alipio Fiorelli signed papers in the County Jail turning over the youngsters to the Rev. Dr. Edward C. Griffin of St. Joachim's Italian Catholic Church.

The little ones are now at the home of Marianno Spurio, 37 Emory Avenue, where they were taken by Captain Detmar. Spurio was placed under arrest Saturday afternoon on the charge of protecting the slayer and assisting him in trying to escape from the city. Father Griffin did not want the tots to be placed in the care of strangers and he took them to the County Jail and got Fiorelli to sign a paper, giving him permission to have the children placed in an institution. Spurio got possession of them the day after their mother was slain and took them to his home.

ENGLISH CHILD GETS XMAS JOY FROM GIFTS OF TRENTON GIRL; FA THER HURT BY GERMAN SHELL

Every one who contributed to the Christmas ship that was sent to the children of Europe's warring nations will be interested in the letter just received by Miss Olive Chatten of 128 North Warren Street. The note is from A. A. Sampson, visitor for the National Relief Fund, who wrote it at the request of Jessie Joyce, 7 years old, of Norwich, England. It follows:

"The grey sports coat and underwear which you kindly sent in the Santa Claus ship have been given to Jessie Joyce, who will be seven years old next March. Jessie has asked me to write and thank you for the nice things and to say that she is very pleased with them."

Jessie's father has been in France and some times in the trenches. He was at home at Christmas and New Year's time because he had been injured by a shrapnel shell which fell a short distance from him, killing four other soldiers. Mr. Joyce was in a hospital for some time and then sent home for rest and recovery. By this time he will have rejoined his regiment.

"Your name and address were found in the pocket of the coat. My next letter is to a little girl in Chicago to thank her for sending a nice toy to a little English girl."

GIRL FAINTS AS SHE CHEERS GAME

Taken to Hospital After V. W. Basketball — Another Gets Lacerated Eye in Contest. Two girls were hurt, it was learned today, in Saturday evening's basketball game between the V. W. C. Miss Ellen Gowdy, who played guard for the Plainfield team, is said to have fainted on the floor during the play and at the close of the game when the visitors gathered to give their yell, she fainted and fell backward, striking her head on the floor. She sustained a slight concussion of the brain, but recovered sufficiently to go to her home today.

Miss Helen Humel, one of the forwards of the same team, received a laceration over the eye. This was treated at the time and was not serious. The game is said to have been very rough, the score at the close being 21 to 18.

He placed his daughter across his knee and applied the parental slipper. FOUR TRENTON GIRLS DOING WELL AT VASSAR; GUARD SECRETS TO DEBATE COMMISSION RULE

Trenton is proud of having four students at Vassar, all of whom are doing good work. Miss Helen Rupert, who won distinction by being second in her class at Trenton High, and Miss Mary Applegate, also a graduate of the High School, are both in their freshman year at Vassar.

Miss Mary Messler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Messler, of East State Street, is a Junior who has taken part in the Vassar debating work. The Junior class has now recognized her ability in this line, by making her one of the two highest candidates for the "Speaker of the Year" title, the even-class debating society.

At Vassar, interest in debate is stimulated by having the students in the odd classes enrolled as members of "T. and M.," while their even-class sisters support the rival society, "Q. U. V." "T. and M." is one of the few college secrets which have been successfully kept for many generations, for no one outside that society knows to this day what the mystical name really means. Some say the stand for "Tea and Muffins," others hazard equally absurd guesses, but the truth has never been hid upon. There is a story that the name was given to a woman who had belonged to an odd class, once confined in her daughter's room, and it happened that the latter became a Vassar even-class student, but she must have kept the information locked in her breast, for it never leaked out.

The two societies have exciting debates among themselves and between each other. The next big event of the year is, however, the inter-collegiate debate, to take place on March 20, between Vassar, Mt. Holyoke and Wesleyan. The subject is to be "Resolved, That Commission Government is desirable for the average American citizen."

ARKANSAS 16TH STATE TO GO 'DRY,' BUT LIQUOR DEALERS WIN DELAY FOR THE LITTLE ROCK SALOONS

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., Feb. 8.—When Governor G. W. Hays signed the state-wide prohibition bill, he made Arkansas the sixteenth state to enact such legislation. The measure prohibits the granting of further saloon licenses for 1915, but does not disturb those already granted. Publication will become effective January 1, 1915.

Forfeiting the effect in Pulaski County, Judge J. Asher granted the petition of Little Rock saloonmen for licenses at 10:30 a. m. forty minutes before the measure was signed by the Governor. Fifty saloons opened immediately. Immediately after the passing of the prohibition bill by the House it was rushed to the Governor's office. But the Governor was busy, having granted audience to a representative of the liquor men who urged that the bill should not be signed until the Pine Bluff petition could be heard by the Jefferson County Court.

This interview, aided by a filibuster which had held up the bill several minutes in the House, gave time for the completion of the court hearing. Not until after the court announced that the saloon licenses had been granted did the measure reach the Governor.

The Little Rock licenses were granted under a law which requires the petitions of a majority of the white adult residents of the city asking for the grants. The petition presented to the court bore 13,154 names. An effort to block the movement there by the prohibition side, resulted in the scratching of 200 names by agreement, but the court ruled that the needed majority had been reached. The licenses had been closed since December 31 pending circulation of the petitions.

MORE SENSATIONS IN HOME MURDER

Hints of Patients in Odd Fel-low Institution at Yonkers Were Buried Alive. NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Convinced that wholesale murder has marked the operations of the German Odd Fellows' Home at Yonkers, the authorities of West Chester and Bronx Counties, aided by the New York and Yonkers police today started additional investigations designed to produce the entire truth. District Attorney Martin, of the Bronx, intends to have the entire conduct of the home before it moved to Yonkers fully inquired into. The Yonkers police and the Bronx detectives have discovered that a statement signed by Frederick Mors which dealt with his actions as keeper at the home at the behest of Superintendent Adam Berger, who is held as a material witness without bail, has disappeared. The contents of the statement are said to be very important.

Coroner Dunn has subpoenaed a number of witnesses to testify before him late today. He very frankly declared that already he has sufficient evidence to convict half a dozen officials of the Yonkers Odd Fellows. He will also ask an order from the Supreme Court for the removal of Mors to White Plains, county seat of Westchester County, where he can be examined.

Meanwhile an investigation ordered by the German Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows has been indefinitely postponed. Suspicion that some of the aged and helpless who are said to have been hurried to their graves were buried alive was injected into the proceedings yesterday by inmates of the home. Until Mors surrendered into the office of District Attorney Perkins with his ghastly story not a suspicion that his home had any suspicious characters had been hastened. Now they cannot restrain their recollections of suspicious circumstances.
