CHARGE DECEPTION IN SALE OF STOCK

Receiver Asked for Newark Candy Company--Shares Had Widespread Distribution

In a bill filed in the Court of Chancery asking for a receiver for the Franklin, Inc., a Jersey Corporation, the charge is made that through gift-tongued agents and extravagant literature the stock of the company was sold far and wide to clergymen, widows and orphans. The bill of complaint is filed by John E. Barrett of Bloomfield, and nearly fifty other stockholders who allege that the directors and brokers in control of the company have mismanaged its affairs.

It is set out in the complaint that the Franklin company was promoted by A. A. Brown & Company, of 1 Wall Street, Newark. It is further alleged that the extravagant statements of the Brown Company in advertising the candies made by the Franklin Company resulted in an indictment of the officers of the Brown company for misuse of the mails. An order was made by the court requiring the company to show cause why a receiver should not be named. The order is returnable next Tuesday in Newark.

LUSITANIA LONG FAVORITE OF SEA

27 she attained a speed of twenty-five knots.

The vessel left on her maiden trip September 7, 1907. This voyage was heralded as a race for the world's record, and the vessel was marking her progress with keenest interest. Greater steamship companies said that her time of five days and fifty-four minutes was not in reality a faster average having been made from Hamburg to New York. No exact comparison was possible on account of the difference in the routes, but the Lusitania's claim to the fastest run from Queenstown was undisputed.

FAVORITE AMONG LINERS.

Three days after war was declared the Lusitania left New York on her regular trips to Liverpool. She slipped out of the harbor shrouded in darkness except for her port and starboard lights. There were 215 passengers on board who were willing to accept the chances of war. During the voyage it was reported that she had been captured by German warships, and subsequently that she was being for some American port. She completed her voyage in safety, however, without sighting any hostile craft.

Although the Lusitania was surpassed in size by several other liners built subsequently, including the Imperator, Olympic and Vaterland, she never lost the reputation acquired at the outset of her career. Her speed and luxurious accommodations made her a favorite, and her passenger lists bore the names of many of the most prominent Atlantic wayfarers. She had nine decks, connected with elevators. Her cabins were designed to look more like a hotel than a ship. There were open fireplaces, windows shaped and curtained as in a private house, elaborate reception rooms, smoking rooms and cafes.

The vessel was pronounced by her builders to be as nearly unsinkable as any ship could be. The lower deck was water tight. The double bottom was so constructed that, should the bilge keels be torn away and the hull pierced, the entering water would be confined within the inner and outer bottoms. The lower portion of the hull was divided into 75 water-tight compartments, with communicating doors so constructed that they could be closed automatically from the navigating bridge in a few seconds.

EVERYTHING OF COLOSSAL SIZE

Everything about the Lusitania was of colossal dimensions. Her rudder weighed 65 tons and she carried three anchors of 10 tons each. The main frames and beams placed end to end, would extend 30 miles. Marine engineers were particularly interested in the great propeller, which the Lusitania was propelled, which were regarded as a distinct departure.

Instead of the usual type of reciprocating engines, her builders installed turbines. These engines developed an indicated horsepower of 70,000, driving four shafts, each of which carried three propellers. The main shaft was 485 feet long, 88 feet beam and 60 feet deep. Her gross tonnage was 32,500 and her net tonnage 9,145. She was owned by the Cunard Steamship Company, 10 of Liverpool, and her captain was W. T. Turner.

It was the Lusitania whose flying of the American flag in the month of February, on her way from Queenstown to Liverpool, in order to protect her against possible attack by a

LUSITANIA'S CREW ORDERLY TO LAST

QUEENSTOWN, May 8.—Latest advices from the Lusitania tragedy say that the crew was orderly during the final moments of the ship, and did its best to launch the life boats. Most of the survivors agree that the two torpedoed struck the Lusitania, one completely shattering her engine room.

The first torpedo struck absolutely without warning in the stockhold. The ship's steel flew high in the air and the great boat shook from stem to stern. Almost immediately afterward another explosion followed. The second torpedo completed the tragedy. Pumes from the explosive penetrated every section of the smashed steamer. Many of the passengers fell to the deck unconscious. Others staggered to the boats and were helped on board.

The steamer was listing to starboard and many of her boats were useless.

KURDS SELL CAPTIVE WOMEN INTO SLAVERY

LONDON, May 8.—It has been officially established in Tiflis that the Turkish forces who recently, under the command of Thal Bey, occupied Dilman, north of Erzerum, this shows that their numerical strength was greater than that of the Russians, and even in the final battle the Turks outnumbered their antagonists. The trophies taken by the Russians were a complete hospital outfit and enormous quantities of stores.

An agent of the Armenian Aid Committee has reported the Alashkirt-Dayze region fully occupied by Russians, and that 6,000 out of 25,000 refugees have returned to their homes. He says that 850 Armenian women have been sold into slavery by the Kurds, but that this number is generally believed to be much greater. It is reported that a total of 5,000 Christians have been killed. Some estimates, however, place the total as high as 10,000.

Robert M. Larabee, an American missionary of the Presbyterian Church; the Nestorian pastor, Isaac Koman, and John Mooshe, editor of the Ermia Star, have been compelled to flee from Dilman.
